703 — Evaluate your killer idea

704 — Give your idea a compelling name CDs (Certificates of Deposit) come of age	Economic Model The bank earns greater volume on interest spread by attracting larger amounts of highly liquid savings funds -- locked up for multiple years -- and lending those funds back out at higher rates in the form of auto loans, mortgages.	709
Brief description of the idea Incent customers to keep large accounts in CDs they would otherwise transfer to brokerage, mutual fund, or other savings and investment products by offering superior return rates the longer the money is kept in the account	Value proposition to customers Customers get the security of fixed, competitive rates of return coupled with the ability to liquidate their accounts at only moderate penalties.	710
Target market Dis-saving segments of the population, e.g., 50+ "silver community" that wants the security of fixed rates of return while recognizing that traditional savings vehicles like savings accounts or T-Bills fail to offer competitive interest rates.	Competitive Advantage Long-term, staggered maturity rates for aggregate CD accounts will lock-in the customers to the bank for longer periods of time, significantly reducing the threat of losing customers to competitors.	711
